Griff Introduces Fans to Another New Recruit-Game Won in First Inning.

By WILILAM PEET.

With the stage apparently all set for a grand clean-up and Joe Boehling tottering, young Mr. Bert Gallia walked slowly to the box. There were three men on the bases, one out, and the Griffmen leading by two points. Gallia kicked the daylights out of the best little batting rally started here in some time, and Washington won the second game of the series from Cleveland, 3 to 2 Old Fox Griff introduced us to another one of his newcomers, Horace Milan, from Linden, Tenn., Clyde's little brother, who has been pastiming in the minors for a couple of years. Horace yesterday played left field, and came across with a safe bit. He looks just like Clyde and acts like him. If he can hit and run the bases as well, Griff need look no further or another outfielder.

There was a whole lot of luck attached to the Nationals' victory; but, then, it is Red Sox Increase Lead in Race by bout time the Griffmen got a few breaks Hitting was light on both sides, and the game was exciting because the visitors inaisted upon having something to say about the final result in the ninth inning. Boehling Wild but Effective.

Joe Boehling pitched good ball, although he was wild. That the Richmond thunderiseit got himself into a bad hole in the ninth was partly because Sawyer let a cround ball get away from him.

Barber scored on the error and Foster of Loughlin.

Bowling Season Gets Under Way with Ten Teams of Masons' Circuit Rolling.

By JOHN A. DUGAN.

Splits and misses, strikes and spares are our midst The bowling season of 1915-1916 was in-augurated last night when the Masonic Duckpin League got into action on the New Royal Bowling Alleys on H street northwest. Ten teams, including the last season' champions, the Lafayette five, occupied ten of the alleys at Sherman's new place which was handsomely decorated for the occasion, while the Kallipolis Grotto band rendered selections.

Harvey T. Rogers, the president of the local branch of the Atlantic Coast Bowling Association, and president of the Dis-trict Duckpin League, was master of ceremonies, and after a short talk he into the front after a little spurt and entered the home stretch a leader. But Davies straightened out The Finn and put the boots to him and the Ogden colt got to the wire first.

Quite a rout happened to the players after the finish of the second race, when liansa came past the winning post in adversarial and after a short talk he introduced Past Grand Master J. Claude Keiper, the honorary president.

Mr. Keiper made the speech of welcome and introduced Past Grand Master Cole, for the State of Kentucky, who was the guest of honor. The season then swung into action when the following lodge representatives rolled the first bulk.
